How ZYPITAMAG® (pitavastatin) is different

Lowers LDL; Raises HDL

ZYPITAMAG is a moderate-intensity statin that can lower LDL cholesterol by up to 45%, similar to atorvastatin (Lipitor®) and simvastatin (Zocor®). But at a much lower dose (4 mg vs. 20–40 mg)¹.

It also raises HDL cholesterol more than other statins. In the LIVES Study², patients who switched to ZYPITAMAG saw:

- Average HDL increase: 4–7%
- For those with low HDL (less than 40 mg/dL): an increase of 16–28%

Fewer Drug and Food Interactions

Most drugs (about 80%) are broken down by the same liver enzyme system (CYP450). For patients who take multiple medications, this can cause interactions and raise the risk of side effects or liver problems¹.

ZYPITAMAG is metabolized by a separate pathway (UGTs), making it a safer choice with:

- Antiviral medications (e.g., Paxlovid)
- Transplant medications
- CBD products
- Grapefruit juice

Minimal Impact on Blood Sugar

While all statins can raise glucose levels, ZYPITAMAG is linked to lower A1C and fasting blood sugar levels.

In a clinical trial comparing atorvastatin (Lipitor®) and pitavastatin (ZYPITAMAG) in people with type 2 diabetes^{1,3}:

- ZYPITAMAG had only a 2.1% increase
- Atorvastatin had a 7.2% increase

ZYPITAMAG is suitable for those with high cholesterol.

It may be particularly beneficial if you:

- Struggle to tolerate other statins
- Have pre-diabetes or type 2 diabetes
- Take multiple medications
- Use CBD products
- Have low HDL-C (“good” cholesterol)
